CYSO 2024 European Tour

Updated April 16, 2023

Frequently Asked Questions and Related Information

Background:

Cascade Youth Symphony Orchestras (CYSO) has organized a European concert tour every three years since 1990, except for a pause during the Covid pandemic. The upcoming 2024 tour will the 11th concert tour for CYSO.

Tour Dates and Rehearsals

Tour dates are June 27 through July 9, 2024. Tour rehearsals will start immediately after the CYSO Spring Concert in early May 2024. Rehearsals will be Monday evenings, with one or two Saturday rehearsals.

What is the 2024 tour itinerary?

The tour orchestra will fly from Seattle to Zagreb, Croatia. The tour will include Opatija, Croatia; Ljubljana, Slovenia; Budapest, Hungary; Bojnice & Bratislava, Slovakia as well as other locations along the way. The plan is to fly out of Vienna, Austria at the end of the tour.

We will have guided tours in Ljubljana, Budapest and Bratislava. Paid entrance to Postojna Cave, Ljubljana Castle and Bojnice Castle are included as well as a Pletna boat cruise on Lake Bled.

Five concerts are planned. The tour company is working on securing contracts for each venue. These will be announced when confirmed. For past tours, we have had some parents travel independently along some or most of the same route taken by the orchestra during our tour. Family members--if you know you will be present for one or more of the European concerts, contact Dennis, as we can usually arrange to reserve tickets for you. Many of our European concerts have sold out.

Application Process

Applications for orchestra members should be available at the www.CYSO.us website.

The process typically includes—

- Application form
- Two recommendation forms
- Interview
- Initial tour payment

Eligibility

Members of Youth Symphony typically have first priority. We also consider and accept some members of Junior Symphony and Premier Orchestra depending on the individual's skills and maturity.

Timeline for applying

Applications will be accepted starting March 28, 2023, and the application process will remain open over the next several months. Some orchestra sections may fill early, so there is no guarantee that all sections will remain open into fall 2023. As one example, we had six clarinet players apply relatively early for one tour, and we were not able to accept additional clarinet players after that time.

Cost

$4975.00 per participant. This can be paid in installments. Payment options include check (made out to "CYSO Tour") and PayPal. A PayPal account is not required. PayPal accepts most major credit cards and debit cards as well as payments from a person's checking or savings account.

How is the tour organized?

The focus of the tour will be the five concerts scheduled. There will be a pre-concert rehearsal at each concert venue. We balance the focused work of performing with guided local historical tours as well as some flexible time for exploring local points of interest.

What is included in the tour cost?

- Roundtrip airfare
- Hotels (typically two people to a room, separate beds)
- Breakfast and dinners
- Guided local tours, including entry fees to local museums associated with the guided tours
- Tour bus
- Courier (more under "ACFEA" below)

What is not included in the tour cost?

- Lunches, snacks
- Cost of passport (visas typically not required, there may be exceptions for those who are not U.S. Citizens)
- Travel insurance (highly recommended but not required)
- Instrument insurance
- Fees for oversize/overweight luggage (large instruments will be addressed below under "Instruments")

Other cost considerations

A common question asked is, "How much money should a person have for daily expenses?" Other than lunches, there are few other expenses other than discretionary ones. These might include souvenirs, snacks, local events (such as local concerts, entry fees or other events that a person might be interested in beyond the regular CYSO Tour activities).

Typically, local grocery stores, markets, food stands and delis usually offer an array of choices for lunch. This can be a fun way to learn more about the local culture. We can assist with locating local cafes and restaurants. My recommendation is to consider roughly $12-$20 for daily lunch and snack items.

Souvenirs are often on the list for orchestra members. Considerations include the size, weight and breakability of the items when packing them for home. Many items can be mailed or shipped, but it can be costly to do so. All items purchased must pass U.S. Customs requirements.

Insurance

Travel/trip insurance is highly recommended, but not required. Travel/trip insurance can include such things as trip cancellation, health issues, and other details. More on travel insurance below.

Instruments should be insured through your homeowner's or renter's insurance. Instrument insurance is not required, but CYSO will not be responsible for damaged or stolen instruments.

The good news is that for the past tours, only one cello case and one set of tubular bells were slightly damaged. British Air paid for the damage to the cello case and the tubular bells. The cello was not damaged. We have never had an instrument lost by the airlines or stolen.

Money handling

Croatia, Slovenia and Slovakia all use euros. Hungary uses forints, abbreviated as "HUF".

There are various ways of handling money while traveling in these countries. My personal preference is to take some cash in the currency we will be using which includes euros and forints for this tour. Many websites advise waiting until getting to Europe to get cash—using an ATM when there.

A credit card from Visa or MasterCard generally are good choices. Discover Card is not useful in Europe. Make sure you have a Personal Identification Number/PIN established for the card. The PIN will be required when using an ATM. Test the card and PIN by using an ATM BEFORE you leave the United States.

Travelers Cheques have created problems in the past, and I do not recommend them.

Check with your local bank regarding whether they can access euros or forints if you are interested. There typically will be an exchange fee, so you might want to shop a bit by checking AAA, the banks, and www.travelex.com as some options. Exchanging currency at SeaTac airport is possible, but the exchange rate may be more expensive. Several web sites that I have checked advise waiting until getting to the specific country and using an ATM there for a small amount of cash.

Do you need cash in each of these countries? Not necessarily. It is for convenience, but many businesses and restaurants will take credit cards.

Consider checking with your bank regarding any foreign transaction fees when using a credit or debit card in Europe.

Passport/Visa

Each member of the CYSO Tour will be required to have a current passport. It must be valid for at least 6 months past our return date. With our return date tentatively being July 9, 2024, your passport must be valid at least through January 9, 2025. The countries we will visit on this tour do not require a visa for U.S. Citizens due to the short time that we will be there.

ACFEA

Associate Consultants for Education Abroad (ACFEA) is the London-based tour company that we have used for all but two of our tours since 1990. They have been in business since 1955 and specialize in tours for music groups. We believe that they are the best music tour company available.

As a feature of our tour, ACFEA provides a Courier. This person is an employee of ACFEA, and will meet us when we land in Europe and travel with us until we depart for the return trip to Seattle. The Courier typically speaks most or all of the languages in the countries in which we tour. If the Courier does not speak the local language, we have had an interpreter join us for that part of the tour.

The Courier makes certain that all arrangements are in order. This includes such things as assisting with hotel check in, morning and evening meals, tour bus, instrument transport, venue logistics, rehearsal details and a multitude of other areas. There are times when we encounter unanticipated situations or request to alter the schedule or minor parts of the itinerary. The Courier provides knowledgeable guidance and support in these circumstances.

Instruments

Each musician is expected to bring their own instrument on tour. The instrument must be in a case that is substantial enough to withstand air travel and baggage handlers.

For most past tours, we have been able to take smaller instruments on board the airplane as carry-on. This includes violins, some violas, trumpets, flutes, clarinets and similar sizes of instruments.

For larger instruments such as cellos, larger brass, percussion and other larger instruments, we have worked with our tour company and the airline to have special loading options. This generally works well at SeaTac but is not always as predictable on the return trip. Having a standard hard-shell instrument case typically works well. We will have instrument packing instructions a few weeks prior to departure.

For the largest instruments—string bass, tympani, bass drum, harp—we make arrangements to procure them in Europe. There will not be an additional fee for the orchestra member in these cases. Bass players will need to take their own bow, in a hard shell case.

Travel Insurance/Trip Insurance

Travel insurance, also known as trip insurance, is highly recommended, but not required. You may have coverage through your homeowner's policy, credit card company or other options.

Safety

Chaperones are part of our tour structure, typically with 5 or 6 orchestra members with each chaperone. We do frequent daily checks to make certain that all tour members are healthy, present and on schedule. During periods of flexible time, we require that orchestra members are with either a tour adult or in groups of three or more orchestra members. In the evening, we typically require that all orchestra members remain in the hotel, unless there is a special event or other situation that we monitor. At night, all orchestra members are required to remain in their rooms.

Along with the tour company, we monitor the safety of our travel by either viewing or receiving email updates from the federal website at the following link--

https://travel.state.gov/content/passports/en/alertswarnings.html

Chaperones

We welcome adult chaperones on the tour. A chaperone application can be located on the www.cyso.us website. There typically is an interview process.

We accept six or seven chaperones for each tour. Over the years, we have had chaperones who have joined two consecutive tours.

The tour fee for chaperones is the same as for the orchestra members. The expectations include monitoring health and safety of orchestra members; supervising, guiding and supporting structured and some unstructured times—as well as having fun. We expect that chaperones model appropriate behaviors by being on time, helping with the daily activities, and related activities. There may be some light duties involving rehearsals and concerts. There is flexible time for some independent exploring and shopping.

Food allergies, medical conditions and other health-related support

For most tours we have had individuals with life-threatening and other allergies, specific dietary needs, and other health needs. We have experience supporting these individuals to create a successful tour. Medical and related details are kept confidential.

For people with specific dietary requirements, we work with the tour company to make specific requests with the airline and the restaurants. The ACFEA Courier assists with this while we are in Europe.

Expectations for orchestra members

The tour group will be about 50 people. Orchestra members are expected to be on time, take responsibility to keep their areas in good shape (on the airplane, on the bus, in the hotels, in rehearsals, in the dressing rooms), and by determining how they can help the tour be successful. Taking care of personal grooming, being responsible for their instrument, music stand and music, and being a respectful roommate and tour participant are also key concepts.

Alcohol, recreational drugs and illegal drugs are not allowed for orchestra members. This is in effect even in countries where the orchestra member may be of legal age, as we follow the laws of Washington State.

Bullying, harassment, intimidation, or discrimination of any kind will not be accepted or tolerated. We are guests of the hotels, concert venues and communities where we tour, and we expect that each one of us will represent CYSO, Washington State and the United States in a manner that demonstrates respect and appropriate manners.

Future topics that will be covered—

- Luggage
- Wardrobe recommendations
- Concert dress requirements
- Music stands
- Instrument packing
